2008 Colorado State Fair

Special Edition

August 29, 2008
2:00 p.m.
Lowline Cattle Show
Livestock Pavilion

Lowline Cattle are coming to the 2008 Colorado State Fair. Developed in Australia from Angus cattle, Lowline are naturally 60% smaller than the Angus they are descended from.

This handsome breed has great conformation, is black in color, and born without horns. Lowline are ideal for small farms and 4-H and FFA, their small size means that they consume fewer resources and are easier to handle. They produce choice cuts of meat and are well marbled; because they are able to be raised on a grass diet.

Lowline are becoming increasingly more popular each year in the United States since their introduction from Australia in the early 1990's. You can catch these cute and tasty cattle on August 29 in the Livestock Pavilion.
